Character Texting

Create a screen of text messages from one character to another. The text messages should address an important event, character interaction, or conflict. Your text messages should demonstrate an understanding of characterization.

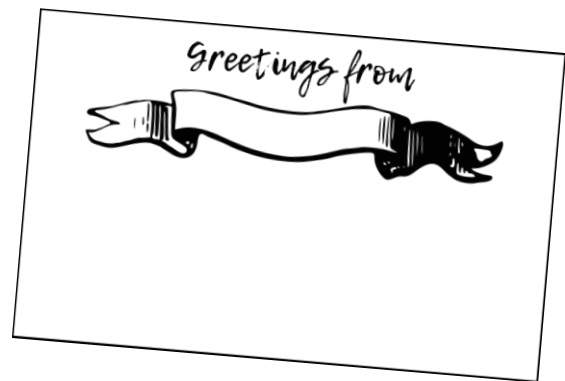

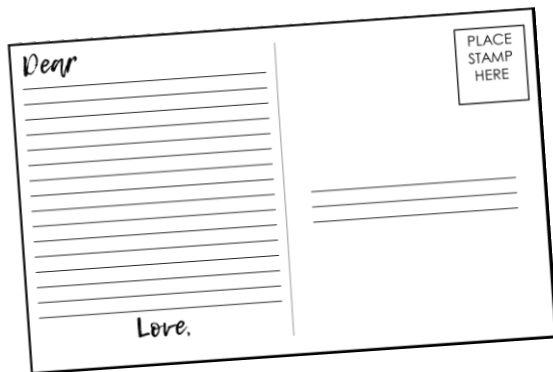

When finished, explain below why this event, interaction, or conflict is important to the text. How does it develop the plot? Cite textual evidence to support your answer.

Character Postcards: Instructions

1. Write a postcard from the point of view of a character. Your postcard should be written to another character. Your postcard should use details from the text to demonstrate an understanding of the following:
 - The character's unique point of view: thoughts, attitude, conflict, etc.
 - The setting and its effect on the character
 - The characters' relationship with other characters, especially the person your character is sending this postcard
2. On the other side, creatively represent the character and/or the setting to complete your postcard.

Character Instagram

Liked by

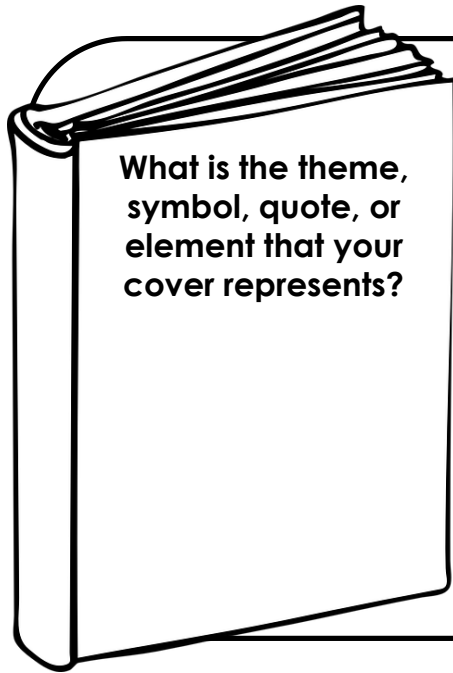

Create an Instagram post that represents a character. Don't forget to create a username, friends who like the photo, and a caption, complete with #hashtags! Think about the character's personality, relationships, thoughts, motives, conflicts, and more. Consider symbolism and theme as well.

When you are finished, explain your representation at the bottom of the page. Use textual evidence to support your representation.

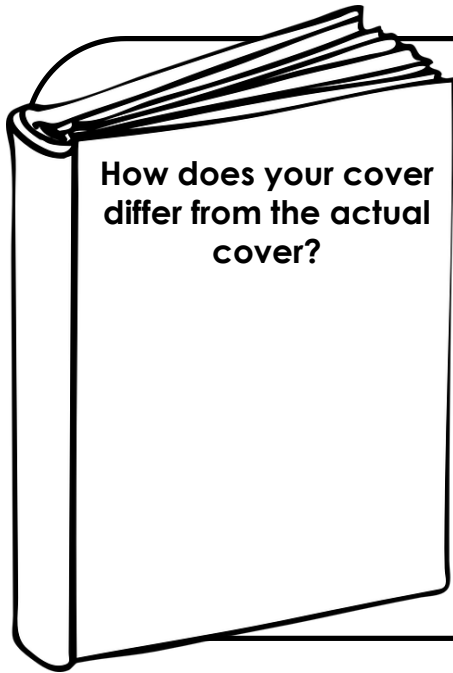

Create Your Own Cover

To demonstrate your comprehension and analysis of the book, you will be designing your own cover. Your cover should represent a key theme, symbol, quote, or element from the book. You will be assessed on your effort and connection to the text, not on your artistic ability. Create your cover on the provided sheet. On this sheet, explain your choices.

What is the theme, symbol, quote, or element that your cover represents?

Explain the theme, symbol, quote, or element that your cover represents. Cite at least 2 pieces of textual evidence to support your analysis.

How does your cover differ from the actual cover?

Explain the choices you made in your cover design. Why did you choose the element you did? How did you artistically represent it? Why is this a good choice for the novel cover?
